Contech Electronics increases distribution of high-tech pet products across North America

VICTORIA, BC (March 8, 2006) Contech Electronics, a developer of advanced pet training and wildlife-control technology, today announced two new distribution agreements within Canada and the United States. This spring, Contech's high-tech pet care and training products will be carried in Canada through Petland Inc., and throughout the eastern United States by H&H Distributing. According to Mark Grambart, CEO for Contech Electronics, the new agreements are just the latest step in the company's expansion from its online sales roots -- in which it is a market leader -- into the retail level.

“Over the past 17 years, Contech has built a loyal customer base in both the pet and gardening industries on the strength of industry favourites like the ScatMat® pet-training mat, and the ScareCrow® motion-activated animal deterrent,” said Grambart. “But as our markets continue to grow, it's clear that the increased demand for Contech products can best be served by further expanding our distribution network to include quality providers like Petland and H&H Distributing.”

Petland, Inc. is a privately held Ohio-based retailer of pet-related merchandise with 120 stores in the United States, 55 in foreign markets (including 49 in Canada), and more than 25 new domestic stores scheduled to open within the next twelve months. H&H Distributing of Ann Arbor, Michigan is a distributor of pet products to major industry retailers such as Pet Supplies “Plus” and more than 200 other retailers across the United States.
